TROUBLE OVER THE SEWER OUTPUT ON NORTH BUFFALO

City will be in Trouble Whether Septic Tank is Built or Not.

For some time the city has been preparing for the erection of a septic tank on North Buffalo creek at the point where the sewer at present empties on the land. Recently operations were held up on account of the fact that the land on which the city proposes to erect the tank belongs to Ceasar Cone and the tank cannot be constructed until Mr. Cone returns from Europe. It was at first thought that the land was owned by W. C. Rankin.

It is understood that as soon as the city begins the construction of the tank an injunction will be secured to prevent this sanitary improvement, some of the people living in the neighborhood stating that they had rather have the sewerage come out in wholesale quantities and spread over the land, than have it kept in a septic tank. On the other hand suit has been instituted against the city by George Donnell, who lives in the neighborhood, on account of the failure of the city to provide a septic tank.

In 1909 W. C. Rankin brought suit against the city and recovered damages in the sum of $700, it being agreed that this amount would cover any damages that might occur in the future from the sewerage, the construction of improvements or changes in the taking care of the output. Mr. Rankin is the man who has prepared to have the work of construction stopped as soon as the city begins work on the tank.

Raleighs Auditorium Receiving Finishing Touches.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, July 31.—Raleigh's auditorium and municipal building is now having the finishing touches put upon it. However there is delay in the arrival of the new furnishings for the offices of the city officials so that it is expected that it will be October before the departments of the city government will be fully settled in the new and very handsome quarters in this splendid hundred thousand dollar building. Also it will be necessary to take some special steps for raising the money to procure the seats for the magnificent auditorium.

ASKS TO SERVE 15 YEARS.

Man Despondent Over Finding Wife Had Married Again.

Galveston, Texas, July 31.—When Enos Clarke Field, 55 years old, returned to his home in Bexar county after being pardoned from the State Penitentiary, where he has served 15 years of a 30-year sentence, he found his wife had married two years ago and moved to another part of the state.

Broken-hearted, he returned to Huntsville and asked to be permitted to serve out his term, saying he would never live out the remaining 15 years and the desertion of his wife made him a friendless wanderer in the world. He owned a farm and other property, which he disposed of.

Wednesday night they will be entertained at a grand ball at Lumina, Wrightsville Beach, and every veteran in line of march will be given an appropriate souvenir, a gift of the Tidewater Power Co. The company has also done the handsome thing in granting the privilege of free transportation over the city lines at any time from Tuesday at noon until Thursday after the parade to any veteran wearing the official badge, and of free transportation over the suburban line to Wrightsville Beach from Wednesday at 2 p. m. until midnight. This courtesy on the part of the street car people will give the visiting veterans an opportunity to inspect the city and to visit Wrightsville Beach. Special Committee of Senators Will Probe the Election of Isaac Stephenson to That Body.

Photos of Bailey and Paynter copyright by American Press Association. Photo of Clapp by American Press Association.

The following named members of the senate committee on privileges and elections have been appointed a subcommittee to decide whether or not an investigation should be made into the charges that Senator Isaac Stephenson of Wisconsin procured his seat in the upper house of congress by bribery and corruption: Weldon B. Heyburn of Idaho, Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota, George Sutherland of Utah, Joseph W. Bailey of Texas and Thomas H. Paynter of Kentucky. These senators will take the record forwarded by the Wisconsin legislature and decide whether or not it presents a prima facie case justifying action. No independent testimony will be sought. It is possible Mr. Stephenson may be heard, but beyond him no other witnesses will be examined. It is expected the subcommittee will take some time in its consideration of the matter, and it is not probable it will make a report to the full committee much before next December. Senator Bailey resigned from the committee immediately after he was appointed.

ASHEVILLE PEOPLE WANT BLACK'S PARDON REVOKED BY GOVERNOR

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, N. C., July 31.—People of the Asheville and Hendersonville sections are again importuning Governor Kitchin to revoke the pardon he granted some months ago to Wiley Black, the notorious wealthy Asheville man, who was serving a sentence on the roads for maintaining a disorderly house in Asheville, He was charged with secretly backing numbers of the blind tigers and other places in Asheville and lately in Hendersonville. He has just been convicted of engaging in the white slave traffic at Asheville and this is the fourth conviction against Black since he was given a pardon by the governor conditioned on good behavior.

Asked about the matter, Governor Kitchin said today that he cannot take any action as to revocation of pardon until there is some official information put before him. And that the certified records of the convictions should be presented to him by those who are clamoring for the revocation. Indeed, under the law, he says, he cannot act until this is done. And that the revocation might have been ordered after the first conviction if this certification had been made following that conviction. Anyway he cannot act without such official certification of the convictions that show violation of the condition of the pardon.

FIGHTING

Lisbon, Portugal, July 31.—Fighting continues between the Royalist and Republican troops in the mountains.

Spain Preparing to Break Up Monarchist Preparations.

Lisbon, Portugal, July 29.—Spain is taking measures to break up the monarchist preparations in Galicia, Spain, which are being made against the republic of Portugal, and will endeavor, in good faith, to disperse the monarchist recruits and confiscate their arms.

Foreign Minister Machado stated today that these assurances had been received from the Spanish government.

Replying to an inquiry as to why it was thought necessary to have 10,000 Portuguese troops on the northern boundary, while further reinforcements are being sent out, the minister said that the government was determined to cut off all irregular communication between the conspirators without and within the republic.

Asked how long the newspaper correspondents, who have gathered here from other countries, would have to wait probably for the projected invasion, Senor Machado replied with some feeling:

"If you wait for that, you will die here. The monarchists have no program and do not represent national aspiration. The monarchy is dead."

WILMINGTON MAN ON TRIAL CHARGED WITH WIFE MURDER

Sandlin's Plea Will be "Insanity"--Coroner's Jury Investigating Nelms' Case.

Special to Telegram.

Wilmington, July 31.—Taking of testimony in the case against L. M. Sandlin, a well known white man, charged with the murder of his wife, Mrs. Dora Sandlin, a few weeks ago began at noon today. Four jurors were selected Saturday and the other eight were secured this morning.

After shooting his wife Sandlin turned the weapon upon himself, inflicting a painful wound in the head. His plea is "not guilty" and "insanity then and now" and all the issues will be submitted to the jury at the same time. The case will probably go to jury Wednesday.

The coroner's jury is this afternoon investigating the circumstances of the killing of Frank Davis, colored, late Saturday afternoon by special police officer A. A. Nelms. The officer was arrested late Saturday night and committed to jail Sunday morning to await the verdict of the coroner's jury.

Sixteen delegates from Cincinnati and fifty delegates from Baltimore were on the steamers Juniata and Dorchester, respectively, and each wore a ribbon bearing the legend "Baltimore, 1912," which is significant in that a portion at least, of Ohio voters, will support the Monufental City for the great political convention at which will be nominated the next Democratic candidate for the Presidency.

Washington, D. C., July 31.—The Democrats of the House will caucus tonight in regard to the Campaign Publicity Bill.

JUDGE EURE BEGINS TRUST BUSTING IN MUNICIPAL COURT

Liquor Business is Dissolved and one of Owners Sent to Streets.

Municipal Court this morning exhibited a pronounced ability to "come back," for after two successive days, Friday and Saturday, when no session of the court was held on account of the blank docket, 11 defendants answered charges of the usual uninteresting nature.

Robert Roach and Peter Burton, both negroes, were convicted of an affray in which the former drew a gun and attempted to shoot his antagonist, but the revolver snapped. Accordingly Roach was sentenced to work out a term of four months on the city streets. Burton was fined $10 and the costs for his share in the trouble.

John Parks was tried for retailing but the prosecution did not produce convicting evidence and he was found not guilty by the court.

The Judge went into the "trust-busting" in another retailing case. Will Brown and Georgie Kernodle were the owners and operators of the business which was managed thus: Will obtained a goodly supply of the stock in trade, the much desired "booze," and while sitting at his ease, allowed the woman to serve as distributing agent. She worked upon a commission and all capital was turned over to him. According to this rule the police, namely, Causey and Bray, found on his person a marked half dollar which they had given to a young white boy to purchase liquor from Georgie, for they suspected the business was in operation but wished to discover the business manager. With such damaging testimony against them, the woman plead guilty but Will was brazen and gave a shrewd explanation of the existence of several pints of liquor found behind the bureau of Georgie's home which she said she was selling for him. The man was given a term of six months on the city streets, and the case against the woman was dismissed on the payment of the costs and suspension of sentence on good behavior.

B. Stadiem was guilty of the offense of allowing his chickens to run at large until his neighbors were disgusted with their conduct. They made out a case against him and he paid the costs of the action and received a warning to keep his pullets in an enclosure.

Henrietta Watkins, a negro woman, was found guilty of larceny but on the plea of her sister the girl was taxed with the costs with the condition that she would begin honest work.

Another cocaine merchant, Tobert Long, colored, received his just reward for dispensing the drug. Two young white boys, Joe Holt and Lee Hunt, who are addicted to the use of the cocaine, proved two cases against the defendant. He was given sentences of six months in each case.

Lillie Joyce, Hattie Glenn, and Oscar Roberson were convicted on the charge of trespass. The two women were taxed with the costs and judgment suspended over them on good behavior. Roberson was sent to the street force for thirty days.

The average price paid by bidders was 102.5764, a figure slightly below that at which the securities now are being quoted in open market. The highest price paid to the government was 105.50 and the lowest 102.2167.

THE EVENING TELEGRAM.

The first number of The Evening Telegram goes to our subscribers this afternoon. We trust they will be pleased with the paper. The paper also goes to many others, and we trust many of them will join our growing list of readers.

The public will readily understand that any change in the routine of a newspaper office, where all work must be done with clock-like precision, necessarily disturbs the even tenor of the business and that a few days will be needed in which to adjust the machinery of The Telegram's business to the new order and to accustom the force of employes to day instead of night work. We feel that the public and our patrons will generously overlook the defects of the next few days, upon our assurance that all will be remedied as speedily as possible; and when this has been done, we assure our patrons they will get the best service this newspaper has been able to give them in its entire career.

The paper issued this afternoon speaks for itself in some degree, but we propose to make it speak more impressively and in a more satisfactory and pleasing manner as the days pass. It is our intention to give the people of this city and of Guilford and neighboring counties a first class afternoon paper. In fact, in time, we hope to make it the leading afternoon paper of the State. If the citizens of this city and county are at all interested in seeing a newspaper of that character firmly established here in the afternoon field, now is the time to demonstrate the fact. There has probably never been a time in the history of the city when it was possible to adjust conditions governing the newspaper situation here more nearly to the satisfaction of everybody concerned than at present.

The Telegram is here, under the present ownership, for the purpose of doing business; but we do not expect to attempt to build up our business on the ruins of the business of any other man or set of men. We expect to succeed and will be pleased to find others succeeding. There is undoubtedly a fine field here for a newspaper of the character we propose to publish, and we expect to cultivate the field for all it will yield. Others may go about their business in the same line unmolested by anybody connected with this newspaper. The Telegram has nothing but good will for its contemporaries in this city and for all the people of the city, county and surrounding country.

We believe the pleasure of laboring and of succeeding affords immeasurable satisfaction to everyone connected with this business, as well as the editor; and in the spirit mentioned we expect to go forward with our work, giving the public the best newspaper we know how to publish under the circumstances; striving always to do better, always to serve the people faithfully and to accomplish, at least, a small measure of lasting good for the community and the State.

The revolution in Haiti appears to be dangerous. Several of the participants have actually been wounded.

The Democrats in Congress are doing things and helping a Republican President to do things.

Since the world learned that Greensboro's water supply is short, the mineral water and ginger ale venders are making extra efforts to do business here.

Atlanta Journal is counting the "dog days." What's the use? Every dog has his day, and there will be enough to go around.

The Commission is a good thing to have when water shortages happen. Decisive action is necessary at such times and decisive action was difficult to secure under the old regime.

Instead of pulling off a war between the United States and Japan why not have an oratorical contest, with Congressman Hobson and Admiral Togo in the leading roles?

The Shelby Highlander says a community is judged by its schools, its roads and its newspapers. Judged by one of its newspapers—The Highlander—Shelby is a mighty good town.

It used to be said that Republicans could be depended upon to stand together in a party crisis. That reputation is being lost. Latter day Republicans have adopted the tactics of the Democrats.

An exchange notes the fact that the New York World claims most of the credit for the passage of the Reciprocity bill. There are a number of newspapers of that calibre in the country, many of them of far less consequence than the World.

Hoke Smith remains Governor of Georgia despite all efforts to force him out of the governorship and into the United States Senate. However, this is only what was to be expected of Smith. He has decided to be Governor until he gets ready to be Senator and he will be found in Atlanta, if he lives, until he gets ready to go to Washington.

Charlotte Observer is unable to figure out how the cotton growers can get a high price for the staple and the mill men buy the same crop at a low price. This is a perplexing problem, but it can best be solved by the planters determining to sell at a reasonable price and the mill men deciding to buy at a reasonable price. Even then there will probably be a difference of opinion as to what constitutes a reasonable price.

Says the Piedmont of Greenville, S. C.: "A Richmond paper referred to Greensboro, S. C., and none of the Greensboro papers corrected it." No correction was necessary, as the mistake was clear to everyone. There are few people in the country who have not heard of Greensboro and not many who are unfamiliar with the fact that this city is in North Carolina.

In Wilmington it seems to be Commission versus Cows, or vice versa. The folks down there who want to keep cows in the city want the Commission recalled because the Commission refuses to allow them to keep cows in the city. If this contest was on in a country village like Winston it would create no surprise, but it is amazing that the people of a metropolitan seaport like Wilmington should want to turn their city into a cow lot.

North Carolina Has Built 3,453 Public School Houses in the Past 3,453 Days.

The biggest thing that has happened in North Carolina in this century is the fact that every one of the working days that the sun has gone down during the past ten years its rays have fallen on a new school house. This fact is not only the biggest fact, but also the most far-reaching because the progress and development of the State along every line has been helped by the erection of these new school houses.

The new Educational Revival in North Carolina may be said to have been commenced with the year 1900, the year when the suffrage amendment was adopted requiring an educational qualification. In an address at the Southern Educational Conference in Winston-Salem in 1901, Governor Aycock said:

"The difficulty which I find most in the way of education in this State is the want of school houses in the country districts. The towns and the cities are caring for themselves—they are able to do so. There we have larger population, and by concentration of population we can pursue education more cheaply; there we have greater wealth. But in the sparsely settled districts of the country we have not the school houses, and until we have them we shall not have much probability of education in this State. If I had the power and the wealth to put a public school house in every district in North Carolina, I would enter into a guarantee that no child, white or black, in ten years from now should reach the age of twelve without being able to read and write. But unless we solve that problem we shall have children who do not go to school. That is the problem which we must solve."

How has the State met that great need pointed out by Governor Aycock? By building a new public school house every day in every year since 1900. Here is the official record by years of the new school houses erected:

New School Houses Built Since 1900.

School Year.	New Houses.
1900-'01	108
1901-'02	329
1902-'03	244

BUSINESS TELEGRAMS

The Telegram's circulation was growing at a most gratifying rate in the morning field, and we confidently expect it to increase much more rapidly in the afternoon field. We have heard of nothing but satisfaction in regard to the change among The Telegram's patrons and there is no reason to believe that the change will cause the loss of any of our subscribers. With new subscribers being added at the rate of several hundred per month at the present time, it is evident that The Telegram will have circulation to "brag about" within a few weeks. In fact, there is no reason why this paper should refrain from tooting its circulation horn now, except that we are conservative and do not believe in "blowing." The quality of The Telegram's circulation has always been of the highest and it has been one of the best result producers for advertisers among the smaller morning papers of the State.

Advertisers will find that The Telegram's present circulation will secure better results for them with the paper in the afternoon field than could be secured in the morning field. At the same time it is true that many advertisers regarded The Telegram in the morning field as the best advertising medium in the city. These advertisers are to be found both among local and foreign patrons of the paper. There is no doubt, however, that the afternoon paper is the result getter of the newspaper world. The business bringing power of afternoon newspaper advertising and its superiority over advertising in morning papers has been forcibly and conclusively demonstrated so often that the facts in the case cannot be questioned. The afternoon paper gets results for advertisers.

Mr. Business Man, look up the advertisement elsewhere in this paper and read what some of the greatest merchants of the country say of the relative value of advertising in morning and afternoon papers. It is a convincing array of proof.

A COUPLE OF DONT'S

(By JOHN WATSON WHYTE.)

I have often read in papers which devote themselves to women's interests writings which warn young wives not to worry their husbands of an evening with domestic details.

Husbands, even tired husbands, like to hear domestic details so long as they are presented in the right light, that is, cheerfully and with a sense of humor.

It cheers a husband up to hear that the servant has fallen unstairs with the best tea set and smashed half of it, or that the cake has climbed out of its tin and spread all over the gas oven.

"Don't" make a tragedy of it, and he won't, and if the cat has got away with some fish destined for tomorrow's breakfast, he will probably laugh and will be quite content to make good with eggs—and store eggs at that.

But if you present these little bits of domestic news with a face as long as a wet Sunday they will depress him so that he is as unable to see the joke as you are.

Now for the final "don't."

Don't, if your husband has made a mistake, remind him of it. Mistakes will happen in the best regulated families, and the best of husbands will make them. He may have forgotten to post the important batch of letters which you entrusted to him last week; he may have lent money to an unworthy friend; he may have put his lighted pipe in the pocket of his best coat and burned it beyond repair.

If you rise to these occasions he will see that you are a woman of great mind and understanding, and will regard you accordingly.

Put Yourself in His Place

(By HARIET PRESCOTT SPOFFORD.)

Each soul bends beneath the weight of its own special cross, and light as such cross to us in comparison with our own, yet if we took the temperament and situation of its bearer with it, we should find it just as grievous.

We see some women of genius, at whose voice, with whose beauty, beneath whose power, every night a multitude thrills. We contemplate her brilliant destiny. We envy her while we admire her. We wonder at partial fate, and laugh at the idea that this fortunate creature has any cross at all to bear. We do not know that she has given her heart and her happiness into the keeping of an unworthy man, so neglectful and so base that her honors, her genius, her beauty, are mere dross to her, and that whenever she lies down to sleep she would be grateful if she were never to wake up.

We see a man beneath whom senates tremble, who moves a nation so that as his heart beats, the hearts of all its people beat, whose name resounds to the farthest parts of the earth. We ask, could he have more?

But we do not know how he suffers under the wide slanders that falsely persecute him, and while they seem to us mere gnat stings, eat up his happiness like a cancer.

Or we see another, on whom fortune waits, who handles States like pawns, who is the personification of power, whose station would be to us as impossible as Alnaschar's dream. We do not know the secret shame for some ill deed that follows him like a Nemesis; of the future moment of horror that darkens all the splendid moments now, when at his death, if not before, the bubble of his fair fame shall be pricked; or else of the hidden trouble in his home that makes all success mean failure; or yet of the whispered disease that gnaws, vulture-like, at his vitals and for which we can have no pity or sympathy, since it is death to a politician's hopes to be known to suffer from disease at all.

We see a lovely woman rolling by in her luxurious coach; her velvets, her jewels, her flowers, her hosts of friends, her devoted husband, her life at home like a chapter in the beatitudes, all move us to imagine what ill thing has already befallen her; that her way has lain over graves, that her heart aches and longs for the children that are denied her, and that without them all the rest is naught. This the knowledge of all this—is, perhaps, but bitter consolation for one's own grief.

Yet, nevertheless, it hinnders one from supposing any particular malevolence on the part of the powers of the universe directed at one's self, and affords one, as we have said, the opportunity—in bringing amusement to those others, relief, oblivion for the moment—of forgetting one's self and one's own burdens.

And in the other case—that of rejoicing in the joy of the fortunate possessor of that blessing—the very exertion of casting aside envy, or refusing to listen to the evil suggestion concerning injustice, brings back a shadow of that joy on us; a ray of happy satisfaction, it may be also, with our own virtue, which is cheering, and gives us certainly pleasant and heart-warming sensations that we should not otherwise have known.

For whether we are glad on our own account of another's gladness is gladness, and it raises the barometer of the soul to the mark of fair weather there; while so long as we have felt that throb of sympathy, have identified ourselves with that other joyous soul, so long, at any rate, we have known self-forgetfulness and have mastered happiness. There is one light of the stars and another of the moon, but it is all light, whether it be direct or reflected.

A doctor was the guest of a well-known explorer, and one night, when the latter had been telling of an Arab attack which ended fatally to his assailant, the doctor asked:

"How do you feel, captain, when you kill a man?"

The other paused for a moment, and then replied slowly: "I don't know, doctor. How do you?"

Sense in Short Sentences

Though the sun of charity rise at home it should set abroad.

There is always good company at home where wisdom, truth and love prevail.

Home happiness is a matter of spirt, not of wealth.

To be in her own place, wherever that may be, a beautiful home maker is the loveliest ambition a woman can have.

The one indispensible quality in a home is happiness. Every home, no matter how beautiful, which misses that is a failure, but no home life can be wholly a failure if it is happy.

To make a home brighter and better by a sweet influence for good, to set some hearts beating quicker for sheer joy, is the greatest privilege a woman can have.

The mind refuses to register overwhelming grief or intense pain. Thus, we soon forget our sorrows, while our happy hours linger in the memory.

This world contains two kinds of women—the wife-woman and the mother-woman. The rest are variants upon one or other of these simple divisions.

Failure, nobly met, produces a greater man than easy success. Besides, success spoils 999 men (and women) out of every thousand.

Never criticize the clothes or surroundings of a friend, and be sparing of advice unless it is asked upon bended knees. The critic may be deferred to; he is seldom loved.

"It says here," began the lady who could do more talking than six phonographs and five parrots combined, "that after a balloon has ascended to a height of six miles its occupants dare not open their mouths."

"Will you go up, Maria, if I buy a balloon?" asked her husband desperately.

DON'T BE TOO HUMBLE

(By CARA REESE.)

It depends largely on what sort of an impression you are to make in subscribing yourself "your humble servant" or in assuming an attitude of humility and lowly obeisance.

The king's jester let his jaw fall in absolute astonishment when a richly arrayed and lavishly bedecked lower servant of nobility presented himself with ceremony on an errand to the castle and, bowing lowly, while his plumes swept the earth and trappings showed their costliness, said, "your humble servant" to the fool who sat at the gate.

"What must the butler look like!" the witless one gasped when he found breath and manners. If all the dazzling and rich accoutrement stood for "you humble servant," then what indeed must be the grandeur of attire in the higher walks of attendance? Continuing his revery on the subject the disturbed jester sighed still further: "Oh, what must the cupbearer, the cross-bow and cow-keeper look like with all this glitter and show on an 'humble servant!'"

And this is how it strikes other people beside those of the cap and bells. Wrong ideas are formed concerning the rest of the retinue or the family or belongings. If this gaily decked one be the "humble servant," and the lesser or least representative of the house or tribe, then what must be the glamor and glitter and over-powering appearance of those who are a step or two higher in the category? It might be just as well when you are dressed up in your best and decked out with jewels, costly laces and the trimmings of wealth, that you should refrain from too much of the "humble servant" and lowly obeisance idea. It makes matters a little difficult for footman, valet and butler or the rest of the train.

In other words, wait until you reach the top before you indulge in humility. To live up to a pace of grandeur set by the least of the family, firm or establishment is a little trying for those who hold higher or more responsible place. There are those of the humbler walks who would fain dazzle the vision when on a journey or errands and they make the eyes of the witless open wide with wonder and astonishment. In some instances their attire, their manners and self-assurance give a disturbing idea to beholders particularly when the gay and festive ones sweep to the earth as "your humble servant" leaving the moonstruck agape as to what the more important of the retinue might exhibit. Keep a spirit of humility as a general thing, but do not make a flourish of it.

Kill More Than Wild Beasts.

The number of people killed yearly by wild beasts don't approach the vast number killed by disease germs. They're in air, water, dust, even food. But grand protection is afforded by Electric Bitters, which destroy and expel these deadly disease germs from the system. BLIND CAROLINIAN HOPES TO DUPLICATE SENATOR GORE'S CAREER

Asheville, July 31.—Asheville had as a visitor yesterday Edward Ray, a native of Madison county, who has the distinction of being the first blind man to graduate at the University of North Carolina and to receive a master of arts degree at Harvard. Mr. Ray lost his sight at the age of ten years, and entered the school for the blind at Raleigh, studying there six years, going from that institution to the Tennessee school for blind. After graduatin at that place he returned to Raleigh and received a diploma from that school, graduating in 1899. After teaching in a public school for a year he entered the University of North Carolina and graduated in three years. He then lectured for a year, afterwards taking a course at the post graduate school of the University of Chicago. He had intended teaching but just after he left Chicago his hearing failed, which made his believe he could not teach to advantage. He took up the study of law and graduated from the Chattanoog College of Law last June.

Mr. Ray passed through Asheville en route to South Carolina, where he is interested in a lawsuit. He is a bright young man, of a cherry disposition, well read and refined. He declares that some day he hopes to be another Senator Gore.

A friend advised me to try Dr. King's New Discovery. I did so, and was completely cured. I feel that I owe my life to this great throat and lung cure." Honest Medicines Versus Fakes.

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to Prepared Medicines, does not refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley's Kidney Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medicinal qualities are recognized by the medical profession itself as the best known remedial agents for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for grown persons, and it retains today its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious. Howard Gardner.

75 PER CENT. OF THE BIG ADVERTISERS OF AMERICA PREFER

EVENING NEWSPAPERS

Out of 400 Large Department Stores 302 say they Prefer Evening Papers and Give Reasons Why

(FROM THE LOS ANGELES RECORD)

OUT of 400 letters sent to the large Department Stores of America asking which they considered a better medium for advertising, a morning or an evening daily newspaper, 392 replied. Of these replies 302 stated they preferred the evening newspaper for advertising; 26 stated they gave the evening paper first copy when they used an evening and a morning paper. As the Department Stores are always the largest advertisers in their respective cities and are in a position to see where the results come from, their opinions, formed from experience, are most valuable. They all speak most emphatically of the advantages of the evening paper over the morning paper for advertising. Of these 302 advertisers who prefer the evening paper a large number of them use the evening paper exclusively and find the returns most profitable.

THE following statements made by the different large firms of America show why they prefer the evening paper over the morning paper:

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The evening paper is best, as it is the one that gets into the homes and stays there. Men carry the morning paper downtown on their way to work in most cases.—Wm. Barr Dry Goods Co.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—The evening paper undoubtedly is the best advertising medium, because it most surely gets into the very hands toward which all department store advertising is intended—the women of the house—and because then there is plenty of time to read, plan and digest.—Loveman, Joseph & Loeb.

CHICAGO, ILL.—We spend $325,000 a year and 75 per cent of it is in the evening papers and 25 per cent in Sunday papers. Even with our great morning papers we cannot make them pay, though the experimenting has cost us $100,000.—Siegel, Cooper & Co.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—We prefer the evening paper for advertising because the housekeeper, business man and working man have more time to go through the paper in detail after the day's work is over and have time to plan their next day's shopping. Our experience is that we get quicker and more direct results from the evening paper.—Fowler, Dick & Walker.

BOSTON, MASS.—We consider the evening paper the best medium, because it is taken home and the women get to see it.—Henry Siegel Company.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—We consider the evening newspaper better, because we cater to the working people, and they are employed from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m. and their only leisure time is in the evening, and they invariably take only evening papers, and have more time to read advertisements.—Cline Bros.

ALBANY, N. Y.—We consider the evening newspaper a better medium for advertising, because women have more time and better opportunity to read the evening papers.—Waldman Bros.

AKRON, OHIO—We consider an evening paper a superior medium. The evening paper goes direct to the homes and is more thoroughly read. It is read by men after business duties are through for the day and they are more liable to remember the advertising. The morning paper is used by office men.—C. H. Leager & Co.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—We consider the evening paper the best advertising medium, as the average woman does not take time to read a paper until her work is done.—Ed Schuster & Co.

DETROIT, MICH.—We prefer the evening paper.—Partridge & Blackwell.

CINCINNATI, OHIO.—Best results from evening newspapers. The only time I use a morning paper is Sunday for Monday's business. Balance of the week the evening papers do the work to my entire satisfaction.—The Fair.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—We use afternoon papers exclusively during the week. Morning papers on Sunday only.—John C. Lewis Company.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—For advertisements containing items of special prominence likely to produce a rush, the evening newspaper serves as a better advertising medium, first, because people as a rule, have more time to read an evening paper thoroughly and note the contents thereof; second, it gives an opportunity to shoppers to select what items they contemplate purchasing and allows them time to prepare a program for the next day's shopping.—Burgen Dry Goods Company.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—We prefer the evening paper week days and the morning paper Sundays only, because the evening paper is brought to the home by the member of the family who goes to business and buys and reads the paper on his way home. The Sunday paper is delivered at the home and read in the home.—Price & Rosenbaum.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—We consider the evening paper the better medium for advertising, mainly because the evening paper goes into the home and stays there when there is time for the whole family to read and consider.—Frederick Losser & Co.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—We have always given the evening paper the preference. We spend $40,000 a year for advertising and this all goes into newspapers. We use no other medium of any kind, as we consider ANYTHING OUTSIDE OF THE NEWSPAPER as money wasted.—W. H. Elsinger & Co.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—We consider the evening paper better as a general thing, for it is usually the home paper.—Callendar, McAuslin — Troup Co.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—The evening paper is, in our opinion, most profitable for advertising.—The Wm. H. Block Company.

BUFFALO, N. Y,—We do most of our advertising in the evening paper.—Wm. Henerer Co.

BOSTON, MASS.—We prefer the evening paper by all means, because it goes into the homes directly, while the morning paper has a tendency to work back into the business section and does not reach the homes in such relative number as the evening paper.—Houghton & Dutton.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—Where I've been, almost without exception, the evening paper is the best medium.—W. H. Milligan, Advertising Manager Field, Schlick & Co.

CLEVELAND, OHIO.—The evening paper by all means.—The Bailey Company.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—It is our opinion that the evening paper is better, as the shopper is prepared to sally forth the next morning.—Penny & Gentles.

GREATEST GATHERING IN HISTORY OF ADVERTISING ORGANIZATIONS

Leading Advertising Men of This Country and England Get Together in Boston for Convention—Meeting Lasts Greater Part of Week.

Special to Telegram.

Boston, July 31.—The largest advertising organizations of the United States and Great Britain will be represented in the Advertising Convention, which opens here tomorrow and continues in session for four days. Many of the prominent delegates are already here, including the Canadian representation and the Londoners. Some two score of the latter, among them the foremost advertising men of England, arrived today, accompanied by Major P. F. O'Keefe, chairman of the reception committee and other members of the committee, who met the visitors at the pier when they landed in New York, and brought them direct to Boston as guests of honor of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America.

In interviews today, members of the England party declared they expect to obtain a great many valuable suggestions for the improvement of business in Great Britain and they in turn will give the American advertising men the benefits of their trades experiences.

In the London party are representatives of the following leading advertising organizations of Great Britain: The Incorporated Society of Advertising, the Association of Advertising Managers, the Society of Advertising Consultants, the London Newspaper Proprietors' Association, the Southern Newspaper Owners, the Irish Newspaper Society, the Northern Newspaper Owners, the United Billposters' Association and various advertising clubs in London.

Some of the best known members of the substantial London delegation are: F. R. Kennington, advertising manager for the North of England of the London Daily News, on of the great newspapers chiefly owned by Cadbury Brothers, cocoa and chocolate manufacturers; J. C. Akerman, representative of the Advertising World, one of the most progressive advertising trade journals in London; W. G. Spooner, director of Willing & Co., one of the largest firms of billposters; A. W. Rider, manager of the London Daily Express, second half-penny daily morning newspaper started in England; Louis Kaufman, advertising manager of Truth, a weekly paper; Reginald Harris, connected with the London Daily Standard and interested in advertising and newspapers in many ways; Lionel D. Falk, representing Heymour & Co., general advertising agents, who specialize in the placing of Colonial advertising; J. A. Mudie, the London advertising representative of the Dundee Counrier, one of the most important newspapers in Scotland; Hopton Hadley, a prominent member of the Society of Advertising Consultents; J. Strong, managing director of C. Mitchell & Co., one of the oldest firms of advertising agents in Great Britain; C. E. Stembridge, general manager of the head office of the Sheffield Daily Telegraph, one of the most important daily newspapers outside of London; H. Burt, representing the Associated Newspapers, Limited, the organization that includes the Daily Mail and other interests of Lord Northcliff; and R. Powell Rees, chairman and managing director of the R. Powell Rees, Ltd., service advertising and commercial agents. In his capacity as honorary secretary of the Sphinx Club. Mr. Rees has been the chief organizer of the London delegation.

The convention will be opened tomorrow morning with welcoming addresses by leading city officials and responses by the officers of the great advertising men's organization. The delegates will then take up their work of discussing the many phases of advertising, from the legal problems of the advertising contract to the kind of paint that should be used by a billboard sign painter. It is declared probable that, at the conclusion of the final scheduled day of the convention, Friday, the delegation will vote to stay in session through Saturday, as it is said by some of them that the contemplated amount of ground to be covered will require more than four days.

WHEN THE HORSE WON'T PULL

Giving a Team a Tow Is Not So Common in Summer as in Winter.

Winter is the time when most commonly one driver helps out another, when the going is bad with heavy snow, but such help may also be extended in summer occasionally, when the going is all right, and a team has been exhausted by the heat. This was such a case, but it had complications.

Here was a small double truck with a load that weighed perhaps a ton, scarcely more than that, and a pair of horses not the best pair in town, but a team that could easily haul the load; but now here was this team halted, while ahead a driver was turning the horses of his truck back to the truck that was halted, to give that truck a life, an unusual sight for the season.

What was the matter? Why couldn't that team with a comparatively light load on get away with it without help? The explanation was simple.

One of the horses in the stalled team has a mind of his own. You couldn't call him a balky horse, nor is he a horse that lies down on the job, and yet there comes times when he won't pull, and when you can't make him, as on a day and in a place like this. On a hot hard day when he gets hot and sweaty and tired he may make up his mind to stop for a time and then he does stop and you can't start him. He wants a rest and he insists on taking it, but when he has rested that way for 10 or 15 minutes he'll put his neck into the collar again and go on.

He had stopped like this and the place where he had now stopped was a little up grade, but this time he didn't stop as long as usual for this is a tolerable busy locality and pretty soon the traffic policeman got the outfit moving. He commandeered a passing truck and got the truckman to give the stalled truck a line, and when the line had been made fast and the towing truck started up both horses of the stalled team started pulling too.

"It's a hot day," said the traffic policeman, "but it's not a heavy load. They'll take it along all right when you get 'em up on the level."

Anxious Mother—Oh, professor don't you think my dear little Reginald will ever learn to draw?

Professor Crayon—No, madam; not unless you harness him to a truck.

CORPORATION TAXES AMOUNT TO MILLIONS

Commissioner Smith Issues Report for Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin—More Than Nineteen Million Dollars Collected.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, July 31.—Business concerns in the five States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, paid corporation taxes aggregating $19,005,000 for the fiscal year of 1910, according to a report by Federal Commissioner of Corporations Herbert Knox Smith made public today.

Those in Michigan contributed the heaviest toll, the figures being $5,400,000. The sum of $5,200,000 was collected in Ohio, and $4,260,000 in Wisconsin. Corporations in Illinois paid $2,720,000, and those in Indiana, $1,425,000.

The report made public today is the third installment of the general report which, in its entirety will embrace corporate taxes paid in all the States of the Union. The report deals with the system of corporate taxation in vogue in the various States and is made in accordance with the Federal law creating a bureau of corporations.

Mr. Smith, in submitting the report to President Taft, briefly stated facts relative to tax laws and constitutional restrictions, but made no comments nor recommendations.

The total taxes collected by the States for 1910 and the percentages of the collections from corporations were set forth as follows:

	Total State Tax.	Per Cent from Corporations.
Ohio	$10,000,000	52
Indiana	7,500,000	19
Illinois	8,000,000	34
Michigan	12,000,000	45
Wisconsin	6,000,000	22

Michigan and Wisconsin make elaborate physical valuation of steam and street railway property which accounts for the size of the corporation tax in those States. Ohio levies heavy special taxes while in Indiana and Illinois there are practically no levies at all. The report states that the constitutions of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois prohibit the exemption of corporate property from a general property tax and calls attention to the fact that railroads and insurance companies are the heaviest tax payers in those States.

Chatham Hosiery Mills Running Again.

Durham, July 31.—The Chatham hosiery mill, which was partly destroyed by the disastrous storm of May, began work Thursday of last week. Only 10 machines were put in operation Thursday, but they hope to have 20 at work tomorrow.

The part of the mill which was destroyed by fire has been rebuilt. Most of the damaged machinery has been repaired and the company hopes to have 50 machines in operation at an early date.

The loss by this fire was about $30,000 much of which was made good by fire and storm insurance.

The fire was supposed to have been caused by lightning, though the building was not actually struck.

Puzzling Words.

The Ladies' Aid women were talking about a conversation they had overheard before the meeting between a man and his wife.

"They must have been to the zoo," Mrs. A. Said, "because I heard her mention 'a trained deer.'"

"Goodness me!" Mrs. B. laughed. "What queer hearing you must have! They were talking about going away, and she said, 'Find out about the train, dear.'"

"Well, did anybody ever?" Mrs. C. exclaimed. "I am sure they were talking about musicians, for she said 'a trained ear,' as distinctly as could be."

The discussion began to warm up, and in the midst of it the woman herself appeared. They carried their case to her promptly, and asked for a settlement.

"Well, well, you do beat all!" she exclaimed, after hearing each one. "I'd been out to the country over night, and was asking my husband if it rained here last night."

After which the three disputants retired abashed and in silence.—Lippincott's Magazine.

Cranky people and busy bees frequently administer stinging reproofs.

The 17-Year Locust.

The 17-year cicada which is wrongly called the 17-year locust, is the longest lived of any known insect, as the grub or nymph lives for over 15 years sucking the roots of the forest trees, often several feet below the surface; in the last spring it finished its transformations, and usually at the last of May or the beginning of June, issues in enormous numbers from the ground. This appearance of the 17-year brood dates as far back as 1633. At the present time each year has its brood or broods, each limited, as a rule, to a well defined district. There are 30 of such broods scattered over a large area in the Atlantic and central states. The southern limits are northern Georgia and the western limits eastern Nebraska and Kansas.

Do You Read the WANT ADS?

Have you found out what interesting news is contained in the want page? There is a reason why want ads are interesting to everybody. Supply and demand create a market. The man who has an article which he has no further use for, with the assistance of a little want ad, can find readily the other man who is looking for just that article. On the other hand the man who is looking for some particular article can find the man who has it and who it perhaps has not occurred that he can sell it, thus by means of the want ad purchasers and sellers for small articles get together.

Try a Want Ad in The Telegram, it makes no difference what you want, tell it here.

JOURNAL OF COMMERCE CROP REPORT.

New York, July 31.—The Journal of Commerce in its special report says:

Texas—Partial returns from correspondents indicate that cotton has at last maintained its condition of 83 per cent of a month ago. Conditions are spotted, the drouth having left portions of the crop beyond relief from the copious rains in nearly all parts of the state. A very large proportion of the crop has been greatly benefited, causing rapid growing, with a strong plant and generally well fruited. Boll weevils and insects are appearing here and there, but no damage has resulted. Fields are clean and temperatures have been normal, while there is but little complaint of scarcity of labor. Picking has already begun in a few scattered sections, but it will not be general till August 15. to September 1. Conditions are worse in South central sections, where the normal production is lightest.

Oklahoma—Cotton has held its condition of a month ago, when it was 88 per cent, with even a possible improvement. Bountiful rains throughout this state broke the drouth from which the plant was suffering. It is now fair sized with good stands, and under good cultivation with plenty of labor. Some sections are having too much rain and are fearing grass and insects but to date no damage has resulted. Everything points to a big crop and the season is generally early, a number of correspondents estimating the date picking between August 10 and 20th.

BULL TURNS BEAR AND WINS

Cotton Plunger Scales Said to Have Recouped Losses of $2,000,000.

New York, July 31.—By a characteristically shrewd move, Eugene G. Scales, who has few peers as a cotton market manipulator, is believed to have recouped nearly all of his estimated loss of $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 sustained about 10 days ago during a tremendous slump in the price of futures. At that time Scales overplayed his hand on the bull side and was forced to liquidate a long line of cotton—placed at from 250,000 to 300,000 bales.

The novel feature about Scales' sudden change in fortune is that his winnings have come from the bear side. Always a bull, he finally recognized the fatality of being on the long side of the market in the face of prospective record-breaking crops. Through the sale of several hundred thousand bales of cotton he has plucked back from the market nearly all that he lost.

FUNERAL OF JUDGE BADGER IN RALEIGH

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, July 31.—The funeral of Thomas R. Badger, late police justice of Raleigh, was held Sunday afternoon at 5 oclock the service being by Rev. Milton A. Barber, rector, with the city officials, the Masons and the Junior Order United American Mechanics in special attendance and a congregation of sorrowing friends that taxed the capacity of the church. The honorary pall bearers were Mayor James I. Johnson, Acting Police Justice W. C. Harris; City Tax Collector Jno. S. Jones, E. M. Uzzell, Jno. W. Brown, William Boylan, C. Bruce Wright and William J. Andrews. The active pall-bearers were J. T. Alderman, W. B. Jones, Edgar Haywood, William Little, Victor Voyden, J. S. McKee, E. R. Battle and J. F. Ferrell. Judge Battle was a Confederate veteran who participated in thirty battles, having left the State University to join the army. After the war he was for some time general freight and passenger agent for the old Raleigh & Gaston railroad. He was twice mayor of Raleigh and was serving his third term as police justice when he died.

Where Our Dead Go.

Maj. S. Harris, one of the Australians who fought in the South African war, visited British Columbia and finally settled down in Vancouver, says the Argonaut. Now he tells of a man in his province who went over to see London for the first time last year and was being shown through Westminster abbey. He got into conversation with a tourist agent who was showing a party about and at intervals the man who was explaining asked the British Columbian questions about Vancouver. "I suppose that in your country you have no place like the abbey?" he suggested.

"No," replied the other.

"Then what, may I ask, do you do with your illustrious dead?"

"First," replied the British Columbian, "we appoint a commission to see whether the man is really dead, and then if the commission decides in the affirmative, we send him to the legislature."

WHAT IS A HUSBANDETTE?

Emancipated Woman Coins This New Word for Spouse Who Hampers His Wife's Progress.

We are indebted to the undaunted sisterhood marching on toward emancipation, and whose success we can now scarcely doubt, for the new word "husbandette." Compacted into that rather imposing-looking word, we may imagine some of the asperity that doesn't otherwise get itself expressed in the caustic oratory that marks the meetings of the more advanced battlers for the right as against masculine oppression.

We are told that a husbandette is "a married man who will neither follow nor accompany his wife in her political flights, nor is he willing to permit her to broaden mentally and politically. He prefers her to keep her ideas of freedom shut up in a tiny space. Also," continues this enlightener, "the husbandette is to the modern woman what the kitchenette is to the modern apartment."

With this further explanation, we are rather more confused than if the architecturally domestic simile had not been subjoined to the description that preceded it.

To the grave and for the most part unimaginative male mind, "husbandette," from its very orthography, would more readily suggest the deferential person united by the law and by annexation and subjugation to the superior being who says: "I and Mr. Smith think thus and so."

The suffix "ette" in its English usage indicates something inchoate, not fully in possession of its powers and faculties, still nebular, perhaps, with potentialities that may or may not find development according to the removal or nonremoval of hindrances natural or artificial.

In this inanimate world its meaning is clear enough. A wagonette is a little wagon, or a lighter one than the standard; a serviette a small napkin, pantalette an abbreviated trouser. It is for this reason of its implication of diminution that "kitchenette" means an abridged kitchen. Husbandette would thus by extension, as the lexicographers say, be an abridged husband, which is as near as we can come to what we are driving at.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Jimmy—What is a retainer, pa?

"A retainer, my son, is the money people pay us lawyers before we can do any work."

"Oh, I see; it's like those slot meters. The people have to pay their money before they get any gas."

Only an unusually stupid girl can afford to be stupid.

ROUSED THE JUDICIAL IRE

Georgia Editor's Humorous Vein Leads to Arrest and Apology.

Dalton, Ga., July 31.—Because of an editorial which recently appeared in the Dalton Citizen, Judge A. W. Fite, of the Cheroke Circuit, had Editor T. S. Shore arrested and forced him to apologize. The judge took exception to the entire editorial, but especially, perhaps, to the closing lines, which read, "And yet the people vote for him and keep him in office. They must do it on the ground that they want to be amused when they attend court. Really we think the price too high and suggest that for amusement the picture-shows or circus be preferable."

The editorial was written on a humorous lines, being headed with a short poem called, "A Great Charge," which started as follows:

A charge to keep, I have;
A bench to glorify,
A never-dying office greed,
To hold until I die.

Then the editorial went on to say: "That was a characteristic charge. Judge Fite got ou of his system Monday. In fact, it was great. Chief Justice White would have been moved possibly to tears and to hop out of his seat had only fate made it possible for him to have heard it. Such Justices as John Marshall and Melville Fuller must have turned in their graves while the Cherokee Judge was delivering himself of wit, wisdom and legal lore. The real fact is there was no jury to charge. The judge simply had to talk. He loves to talk. His voice is sweet and melifluous and no matter whether he says anything or not, it sounds good to him. He talked for some time, but said nothing."

If you sit in a draft, the doctor may cash it.

THE HOME OF GOOD SHOES.

THIS WILL BE EXACTLY LIKE FINDING MONEY

As stated in Sunday's paper The Telegram will in a few days issue a special page of ads the page to be known as the "Hidden Check" page and will be made up from the advertisements of about 40 leading firms and business houses of the city, and will be run once a week for three weeks or three issues. The Telegram will hide in some prominent and conspicuous place in the city a check for $5.00. This check when found and brought to The Telegram for endorsement will be honored at the bank for $5.00. The question naturally arises where is the check? Here is the answer: In each of the ads. which appear on the "Hidden Sheck" page there will be inserted one or more extra letters or misspelled words. The reader must read each ad carefully and very closely, pick out the extra letters and when all have been gotten out, arrange them into a sentence, this sentence when correctly arranged will spell out where the check can be found. Of course the first party who gets out all the letters and gets the sentence arranged so as to tell where the check is hid will go get the check, bring it to The Telegram office for endorsement and receive the $5.00. Remember the page will appear once a week for three weeks and with each page The Telegram will hide a new check for $5.00, making $15 to be given away in all. Be sure to watch for the "Hidden Check Page" and when it comes out the last of the week get busy and find the check.

CATTLE BARONS OF MEXICO PREPARING FOR IMPENDING STORM

Special to Telegram.

San Antonio, Texas, July 31.—Reports from Mexico are to the effect that the Madero family has begun the shipment of cattle out of that republic, thirty car loads having left one station, all of these the property of the Maderos. Cattle shipment is not confined entirely to the Madero family, other large producers are on the jump to bring on a hurried movement of stock to the United States. It is pointed out by some that this is an effort to get this valuable property out of the republic before the approaching election, it being maintained that those on the inside do not know what may follow the election. While the recent revolution was at its height, cattle proved a pretty valuable sort of contrabrand. Steers, good cows and yearlings were big factors in the commissary department of the Maderos. One of the big cattle barons of northern Mexico was a liberal contributor to the revolutionary commissary—not willingly, however, but the Madero soldiers were good foragers and helped themselves. It would seem from the present movement that the cattle raisers in Mexico are living up to the old adage: "In time of peace," etc.

BOY SHOT FOR BATHING

Possible Charge of Homicide, Based on Trespass.

West Chester, Pa., July 31.—Adonis Latch, a farmer, 65 years old, living near Devon, has been arrested and held under heavy bail, charged with having shot with a revolver and probably fatally wounded Howard Lamb, aged 17 years, a bellboy at the Devon Inn, who was trespassing upon Latch's farm.

The boys of the neighborhood have for some time been swimming in a pond on the Latch farm, and the owner has raised objection. When Latch discovered Lamb and several companions crossing his field on their way back to the Inn from the pond he at once fired, it is alleged. The bullet entered Lamb's side, penetrating deeply and inflicting a dangerous wound. He was taken to the Bryn Mawr Hospital.

Another permit was to Lindsay Osborne for a business building on South Elm street between Fayetteville and Lee streets. The cost of this building is estimated at $1,500.

FUNERAL OF PAUL MARSH SUNDAY AFTERNOON.

The funeral services of young Paul Marsh, who died of typhoid fever, were conducted at 4 p. m. Sunday afternoon at Forest Avenue Baptist church, of which the deceased was a faithful and devoted member. Pastor R. G. Kendrick was assisted by Rev. Shuford Peeler in the funeral and burial services. The career of this young Christian, though brief, was quite a remarkable one. The Sunday before he died was the first he had missed attending his Sunday school class in the three full years. He was converted and baptised in May, 1910, when only 12 years of age. The floral tribute from many friends was beautiful. The interment in Green Hill cemetery followed the services.

The death of the boy is peculiarly sad in that his entire family of brothers and sisters has recently been afflicted with the dire disease, typhoid fever. He was sick only two short weeks. Five other children in the family have contracted the fever and the sister just older than the deceased boy is seriously ill while two younger children are now recuperating satisfactorily from the sickness.

Honorary pall-bearers as follows served at the funeral: Dr. J. T. J. Battle, J. W. Bloxton, J. S. Moore, J. R. Moorefield, R. C. Wysong and O. J. Leonard. The active pall-bearers were: C. S. Harward, J. G. Reitzel, A. M. Kellam, Fred Holton, Rufus Wysong and Mr. Jordan.

The "efficiency system" of America finds its couterpart in the United Kingdom under the euphonious title of "satisfactory level." There is now a dispute at Bacup, in which is involved the question of standard of quantity in a given time. It is charged that the mill owners have exercised more than the "legitimate pressure" in arriving at their satisfactory level per individual production. Sympathy in general is with the operatives in the controversy.

According to British census returns, the employs in linen mills of the United Kingdom number about 96,000, whose average earnings per week are approximately $2.90 each. This wage scale applies to men and women. Boys who attend hackling machines average about $2.00 per week for full time. Allowing for all stoppages, and on the basis of the average earnings per head of all employed in an ordinary week, the earnings of each employe for an entire year do not average more than $143.

The Boston, Mass., cigar makers claim the best organization in the country, and receive the highest weekly wage per member than do the members of any other cigarmakers' union in the country. The wage for the cigar makers was $2,900,000 last year, and the average was about $1,000 per member. The average in the United States is not over $600 per year. The Boston Cigarmakers' Union, besides advertising the cigar makers' label in the press and elsewhere, has a representative in the Boston Chamber of Commerce, whose business it is to boost the label. In connection with the membership in the Boston Chamber of Commerce there is each year an exhibition of the various kinds of cigars made in Boston, with a member of the union present to tell visiors the difference between the various shapes.

Boards employed to fix minimum rates of wages were first established in Australia, in 1889 the State of Victoria enacted a statute providing for special wage boards, composed of an equal number of employers and employes, and a chairman appointed by the government. Each represents a different industry and fixes schedules of pay, which are the lowest that any employer in the trade is permitted to give. "Slow workers" may, however, be hired at lower rates. While not entirely abolishing, the law has diminished "sweating," has maintained wages above amounts paid in unregulated trades, promoted organizations among the workers, brought employers and employes closer together aid elevated the plane of competition. The great majority of the people of Victoria, including most of the employers in the regulated trades, seem to be satisfied. Between 1907 and 1909, New South Wales, Queensland and South Australia have adopted the wage board system.

The election of officers of the International Association of Machinists which is being held by referendum during the month of July, promises to be the most bitterly contested in the history of the orzanization. A faction of the International Union is opposed to the re-election of President James O'Connell on the ground that he is not "progressive." In refutation of this charge the friends of O'Connell are sending a circular letter throughout the country, in which they show that since O'Connell was elected president in 1892, the membership of the organization has increased from 2,500 to 75,000; that the treasury, which was empty when O'Connell assumed office, is today secure and the income on investments is 2 per cent greater than that received by any other labor organization In addition to this, statistics are given showing that under the O'Connell administration more than $500,000 has been paid annually in benefits to members, and the working day has been reduced from ten to twelve hours to eight and nine hours.

"Look here," said the warder, "I put No 711 on the treadmill eight hours ago as a punishment, and I'll be bothered if he ain't going on just as pleased and happy as can be."

"Why, of course," said the superintendent, in tones of disgust. "Didn't you know the fellow was sent here for bicycle stealing?. That sort of thing comes as natural to him as walking."

INSURGENT REPUBLICANS BOOM J. R. GARFIELD

Son of Former President and Former Cabinet Member is Seeking Endorsement of Ohio Delegation in Opposition to Taft—La Follette is Waiting for 1916 to Seek Nomination.

(By VICTOR ELLIOTT.)
Special to Telegram.

Washington, July 31.—Another effort is being made by insurgent Republicans of the country to unite their forces in the nomination of a candidate against President Taft.

This time James Rudolph Garfield, son of the former President, and late Secretary of Commerce and Labor in the Roosevelt administration, is the man.

For a time there was a possibility that Senator La Follette could bring together all the progressives of the country but he has failed to do it. Then it was believed that Senator Cummins of Iowa, could do it. This was soon seen to be impossible. After that, first one name and then another was proposed, but all failed to qualify.

Friends of Mr. Garfield have persuaded him to allow the beginning of a presidential boom. They have promised not to tie the former cabinet officer up in any declaration of candidacy. They merely want to use his name for feeling-out purposes.

This was in the beginning, in Cleveland, Ohio, the home of Mr. Garfield. As soon as the news was borne to Washington, the inflation of the boom became more marked. People who talked to Mr. Garfield came away saying that at the proper time he would come out in the open and be a real candidate.

The other day Mr. Garfield came to Washington. He talked a lot to friends here. These friends had heard of the candidacy rumors. They wanted confirmation. This, it is said, some of them got. Others were not so positive. Just the same, before Garfield returned to his home, the semblance of a Garfield organization was started here.

This is the Capital end of the boom. Out in Ohio there is another boom. In that State the argument is being used, in Garfield's favor, that he can win the State delegation away from the President in the convention. This is undoubtedly a broad statement, but it is interesting.

If this insurgent leader can take the Ohio delegation out of the Taft column, it will be a serious blow to the President. Every presidential candidate is supposed to start out with his own State. If he cannot control that it is always contended, he cannot get far with any other State.

That is why the Garfield adherents boast that Ohio will instruct for the former Secretary, instead of for the President, is of more than passing importance. Of course, it may all be a boast, but even so, it is enough to give encouragement to the Garfield boom in other States, and will cause his insurgent associates to take him seriously.

The President's friends in Ohio appear to entertain no fear about the State delegation. They say that Ohio will be loyal to the Executive. They say that it is idle talk about winning the State away from its most distinguished citizen in the convention. They claim that insurgency has no real footing in the Buckeye State.

Whatever else it may have done, the Garfield boom has served to revive interest in the apparent impossibility of the insurgent wing of the party deciding upon a man who can hope successfully to oppose the President for renomination. At one time the La Follette ambition seemed to be of some consequence. Now that worries the Republican regulars not a bit.

Everybody knows that the Wisconsin Senator is laying his plans for the 1916 campaign. He expects to be President after that time, and not before. Just now he is a nominal but not an active candidate. He probably wants to see the President nominated and then defeated in the election.

Such a defeat as that would, in the La Follette philosophy, mean the nomination in 1916 of a progressive. He expects to be that progressive. The country, he argues, will turn down the conservatives in the coming national election. The Democrats will win the Presidency, whereupon, he, La Follette, will offer himself to his party as the one man who can be both nominated and elected in 1916.

This program does not contemplate the aspirations of the able Senator Cummins of Iowa. He, also, wants to be President. He is therefore the rival of his associate, the Senator from Wisconsin. He is not now enthusiastic over the candidacy of La Follette, and has refused to follow "Battle Bob" in more than one Senate fight. Likewise La Follette has hesitated to give Cummins too much leadership in the Senate.

Both these Senators seem quite willing that Garfield shall be the progressive candidate this year. They expect him to go down in defeat at the convention. That will, therefore, be the end of Garfield. His defeat will mean a clear field for one or the other of the present insurgent leaders in the Senate.

The position which former President Roosevelt will take with regard to Garfield is a matter of speculation. Garfield was one of the Colonel's favorites. It was the former President who elevated the Ohioan from the head of the Bureau of Corporations to a Cabinet position. It is fair to assume that the ex-President still believes in his former Secretary of Commerce and Labor.

But Mr. Roosevelt has declared for nobody for the Presidency next year. At least he has issued a public statement to that effect. It may be, Garfield's hope, that the Colonel is waiting to see which way to jump, and if Garfield can go in and capture the Ohio delegation, the Colonel will lend the force of his influence to the former Secretary.

In the meantime Garfield is quietly traveling through the country, conferring with his friends. He was last heard of in Boston, where he had a long conference with Louis Brandeis, one of the leading insurgents of New England. The Ohio leader is watching closely the results of various congressional investigations which reflect seriously on the Taft administration.

It is even said that Garfield persuaded Brandeis to act as attorney for the House Controller Bay Committee, in expectation that valuable campaign material would be developed by the shrewd attorney.

What Should Be Done With Parents.

It seems remarkable that with about sixteen thousand new criminal statutes recorded each year nothing has yet been done for the regulation of parents.

Children are daily, nay, hourly, subjected to mortification because their parents commit some breach of modern etiquette or betray hopeless ignorance on some vital point, and this goes on day after day and year after year and nothing is done about it.

Too much, of course, should not be expected of our modern parents; that they know nothing of geography is, for example, not necessarily to be laid to their discredit. But that they are hopelessly ignorant of slang, that they sniff at cigarettes and rouge and that they like to see plays where the villain meets his just due and virtue its reward, and that they wear shockingly old-fashioned clothes, are all matters for public as well as private concern.

What are we to do with parents who never drink anything stronger than lemonade, leave their spoons in their coffee cups, refuse to sit in roof gardens until midnight and dislike to ride in a motor going more than thirty miles an hour?—Life.

Mating.

"This is the mating season," said a clergyman. "I shall add appreciably to my income by mating youths and maidens in this soft, brilliant weather."

He smiled.

"I mated a girl yesterday," he said, "to a youth with a rather thick head. At the beginning of the ceremony I said to him:

"'You are to repeat this after me.'

"And then, prior to beginning the declaration, I whispered:

"'Take her right hand.'

"'Take her right hand,' the stupid fellow bellowed, and everybody in the church laughed.

"Afterward he couldn't get the ring on the bride's finger.

"'Wet it,' I whispered.

"And acting on my advice, he put her little white finger in his mouth, and, after lubricating it thoroughly, succeeded in making the ring slip on."

Its Style.

"Do you know her cool impudence is like a condiment to the others' conversation."

"Yes; something of what you might call Chili sauce."

ALL OVER IN A WEEI

WILLIAMS' STAY IN BOARDING HOUSE SHORT AND SWEET.

Gave Every Evidence of Being Experienced Boarder and His Smart Sayings and Mannerisms Were Talk of House.

When young Mr. Williams came to our boarding house it was plain to every one that this was not his first experience at boarding.

In fact, his actions seemed to indicate that he was old and experienced in the life of boarding, and that he had come to us from some other boarding house, or possibly from a succession of them.

It was shown in the aplomb with which he assured Mrs. Hicks that he invariably paid his board on pay day, and that his pay day came on Saturday, ignoring her somewhat distorted statement that she insisted on pay in advance in every case.

It was further shown in the way he skilfully flipped the covering off the bed in his hall bedroom and appraised the condition of the sheets with judicial eye, his opinion, good or bad, being represented by a noncommital grunt.

He was a normal young man, was Mr. Williams. He had just the normal amount of baggage. His face was so nearly normal that people he knew would forget to speak to him. He was of medium height and weight, and so far as we could see had but one suit of clothes, and that an ordinary dusty, brownish gray.

His appetite, too, proved normal. He had a typical boarding house appetite that pushed aside those things it did not want and insisted on a double supply of those it did. It was a discriminating appetite that refused to accept things the nature of which did not appear on the surface.

Immediately after supper Mr. Williams sat on the front steps and regarded fellow boarders with speculative eye. Being a normal boarder, with what might be called an abnormal nerve, he easily decided that Miss Amy Crothsweight, who was a stenographer in the roller mills office, was the only one of us worthy of his attention. And in fifteen minutes he and Miss Amy went for a walk, heading, of course, toward the drug store soda fountain. Miss Amy, too, prided herself upon her dignity.

When they came back Mr. Williams had some chewing gum, which he passed about.

Next day he was wearing a tie we recognized as belonging to Mr. Willoughby. Mr. Willoughby, when pressed, admitted that he and Mr. Williams had become somewhat chummy.

Toward the end of the week Mrs. Hicks was taking an unusual interest in Mr. Williams. She quoted him to the girls, and would tell the boys how smart he was.

He was the most ingratiating person, was young Mr. Williams, and, as everybody got to liking him, his sayings and mannerisms were the talk of the house.

On Saturday he did not appear at the table. Mrs. Hicks said he was called out of town. He didn't come back either.

His trunk was hauled by Jim, the porter, to the junk room, and we did the best we could to forget him. We have often wondered if he went abroad, or was killed by a motorcycle, but have never learned.

It's always that way, for people come and go like guests at our boarding house.—Dallas News.

Getting the Facts.

"Mrs. Ashcraft," the summer boarder inquired, "why do you keep these guinea hens?"

"My husband has me cook one of 'em once in a while," answered the farmer's wife. "He says he likes their gamy flavor."

"Mr. Ashcraft," said the boarder, later in the day, "why do you keep these guinea hens?"

"O, my wife likes to hear 'em sing," responded the farmer.

Smoky Achill.

One of the smokiest places on earth is undoubtedly Achill, off the coast of Mayo, Ireland, says Harper's Weekly. A smoky atmosphere is not an unknown thing in any Irish cabin, but in Achill the greater the smoke the higher the satisfaction of the natives, for these smoke means potatoes, and potatoes mean food.

It is to one of the methods of procuring soot that the islander owes the smoky condition of his cabin. Soot he must have, or the potatoes will not grow. In the tiled fields he erects little huts called "scrawhogues," formed by the "scraws" or sods of heather from the mountains. Within these huts he keeps a fire of peat burning for six weeks or two months, at the end of which period the scraws are, from their continual impregnation with smoke, transformed into soot.

Turf or peat is abundant on the island, and the largest fires cost nothing.

Rudeness Properly Rebuked.

A young man sitting in a subway car in New York, with legs crossed and one foot, showing a highly polished shoe and silk sock, extended so far into the aisle as to make it almost impossible for people to pass without coming in contact with the obtruding member, was brought to a sense of his disregard for others by three young women who sat opposite. One said: "I wonder if he is showing his foot or his shoe?" The second said loud enough to be heard above the car clatter and to the amusement of others: "I think he wants to show his clocked socks—watch it." "No," said the third, "he's only showing his bad manners." The foot came down and was lost in the crowd which got off at the next station.

Rank in Kentucky.

"Yes, sir," the Kentuckian said, as they sat by the stove, "you can tell a man's rank in this state thusly: If you see a man with his feet on top of the stove he's a gineral; if his feet is on that rail half way up he's a colonel, and if he keeps them on the floor he's a major."

"Ah, yes," his companion said; "that's good as far as it goes; but how are you going to distinguish a captain or a lieutenant?"

"Stranger, we don't go no lower than major in Kentucky."—Lippincott's.

The "Bargain Hunter" Always Has Money

Haven't you noticed the strange coincidence that, although accused of improvidence and extravagance, and of buying things not needed simply because they are cheap, the "BARGAIN HUNTER" seems ALWAYS TO HAVE ENOUGH MONEY with which to make all of these extravagant purchases?

It is the woman who is "too busy to read the ads." who is too busy to BUY WISELY! and who can never "afford" to buy even the very best of bargains!

To know WHAT IT OUGHT TO COST—and to SAVE A WORTHWHILE PORTION of that sum when youbuy it, is the PRIVILEGE OF THE AD.-READER.

Everybody get ready to give the Patriots a rousing reception, we came near saying Champs, on their return tomorrow.

Lave Cross, manager of the Charlotte baseball club, has resigned, and the directors have placed "Red" Garman, the Hornets' first baseman, in charge of the team. Lave is one of the best individual players in the league, but he has never been very successful in this league as a manager.

Clancy has let Brockmann, signed for a first baseman for the Twins, have the pink slip, and Shumaker goes back to first. Brockmann is apparently a good first-sacker, but is ineffective with the willow.

First Baseman Joe Fuller of Greensboro is the only player in the league that went for a month of consecutive games without failing to make a hit. Fuller made 35 hits in 27 straight games. Quite a number of batsmen went from 10 to 14 on a dead stretch.—The Observer.

BOLT RESTORES HER HEARING

Woman of 65 Glad Lightning Sought Her Out.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 31.—Declaring that being shocked by lightning during a recent storm at her home in Canaan, Wayne county, restored her hearing, although she has been deaf since she was a child, Mrs. James Decker, aged 65 years, is now blessing the fact that she was struck.

A bolt of lightning struck so close to her when she was in the open near her house that she was thrown heavily to the ground and stunned. When, after some hours, she recovered from the shock, she was surprised to find that she heard an ordinary conversation, something she has been unable to do since she was a child.

OLD VETERANS GATHER IN WILMINGTON

Miss Mary Wiggins, and Miss Alice Davis are the maids of honor, while little Miss Emily Jewett is the mascot of the Cape Fear camp.

With their ranks a little thinner, their heads a little whiter and their steps a little more faltering, will come together the men who breasted the iron storms of war on a hundred fields and followed the Stars and Bars from the time of the firing of the first gun at Fort Sumter on through the awful conflict to the climax on the third day at Gettysburg, when the flower of the Southland swept across that bloody field under the leadership of the gallant Pickett, only to meet a defeat which struck the death blow to the hopes of the South, to the time when, with broken heart and the ragged remnant of one of the noblest armies that ever went to war the immortal Robert E. Lee surrendered on April 9, 1865; these men will meet and exchange memories, tell once more the camp fire stories and clasp each other's hands in what, for some of them, will be the final farewell.

The North Carolina Division of the United Confederate Veterans will be called to order in the Academy of Music Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock by Gen. Julian S. Carr, of Durham, the commander The address of welcome will be delivered by Mayor Joseph D. Smith, of this city, and the response will be made by Col. W. H. S. Burgwyn, of Weldon. W. P. Stacy, Esq., a prominent young member of the local bar, will deliver the oration. Other features of the session will be music, the reading of the North Carolina Veterans' Memorial poem, patriotic dramatic readings, songs by a veteran choir and the business session.

Thursday the parade will take place and under their flag, the Stars and Bars, the veterans will once again march to the familiar strains of "Dixie," "The Old North State," and other patriotic selections. The procession will move promptly at 10 o'clock, and a portion of Front and Market streets will be traversed. This will be the concluding feature of the reunion.

CROPS LOOKING BAD AS RESULT OF CONTINUED DROUTH

As a result of the continued drouth the crops in this section are looking bad and unless there are soon copious rains the corn crop will be cut from one half to two thirds. The tobacco crop is even worse and many farmers will not have half a crop. The weed is late, in many instances being only three or four inches in height, while at this time of year it is usually in top and in many cases ready for curing.

As the same state of affairs exists practically over the entire State the outlook is that the weed will be exceptionally scarce next winter and high prices will doubtless prevail. In Guilford, according to reports, the condition of the tobacco crop is some better than in other nearby counties, but even here it will be only about one half. In the first place not a full crop was planted and then the stand was quite irregular. It is not an uncommon sight to see a field, a third of which is in top, a couple of inches in height and the remainder about half the size between the two. But for the fact that the scarcity of the weed will doubtless cause high prices the farmers who depend almost entirely on their tobacco crop for a living would be facing a serious state of affairs.

The Court House Annex.

The new annex to the court house is rapidly nearing completion and will in a few weeks be ready for acceptance by the county. The building is being erected at a cost of about $4,500. It is two stories in height, the first floor being for the use of the commissioners and the second story for the use of the county superintendent of education. The plans were drawn especially to suit the needs of the county officials and the educational departments of the county.

A man may be on the square and still move in the best circles.

FARMER ARRESTED FOR TRAIN WRECKING.

Westchester, Pa., July 31.—Robert Courtney, 17 years old, a farmer, was committed to the Chester county prison here today charged with making an attempt to wreck a passenger train of the Reading Railway at Cedar Knoll, on the Wilmington and Northern division. He was sent to prison after a hearing before Magistrate Myers, of Coatesville. It is alleged that Courtney placed a number of rail plates on the tracks with the intention of causing a wreck on a sharp curve beside a deep dam, into which the train would have plunged had the effort succeeded. The attempt was made three miles from the point where a passenger train was derailed a week ago, in which the engineer was killed and 16 passengers injured.
